

Expansion of low-power FM would increase media diversity and give schools, churches and other civic organizations a greater voice on the airwaves and in their communities.